

U3A High Street Project Workshop

Workshop for U3A groups and members

10.30–12.30 Tuesday 26th January

Develop your local 'High Street-inspired' project.

As promised, here is the booking link to the workshop on 26th January. The purpose is to share and discuss ideas, and leave with a skeleton plan of action that you can tailor to your own U3A purposes. The event will be introduced with a brief update on the facts, figures and plans that have arisen from the data already provided by 500+ members who have taken part in the 2020 High Street survey.

Any U3A or member can join the workshop on 26th January whether or not you completed a High Street survey in 2020. Please feel free to circulate this information to your U3A contacts. Many of you have already suggested that making audio apps for guided trails would be a great local project, and so Peter Clift and Nick Bailey of U3A Radio have kindly agreed to attend and offer help and advice about structuring interviews and practical audio recording.

There are 4 breakout rooms for you to choose from:

- High Street-related projects as a means of attracting and retaining members: Led by Linda Foreman, Kingston U3A and looking at active short-burst projects, from survey work to language learning and urban sketching
- Change, planning and future visions: the decisions that shaped your High Street and continue to do so, led by Ann Keating. Why were / are decisions made, and is all change for the worse? How can survey data gathered by members illustrate change in action?
- The living history of the High Street: capturing reminiscences in many different ways, led by Jo Livingston of Bexley U3A and U3A radio
- Make a walking trail using street names, working life, notable people and landmarks to tell the story and convey the sense of local identity, led by Ann Higgins of King's Lynn U3A and U3a Radio
